Superheroic Series kicks off with BRIGHTEYES from Nosetouch Press

[CHICAGO] Nosetouch Press is proud to announce the release of Book One of the SHUTTERCLIQUE superhero series, a novel entitled BRIGHTEYES.

“BRIGHTEYES is the start of a planned seven-novel superhero series,” said Dave Neal, author of the series and co-publisher and editor at Nosetouch Press. “As a big fan and collector of comic books in the late ’70s and early ’80s, I wanted to write a series of novels that both captured what I love about superheroes and offered a poignant parody of them.”

“BRIGHTEYES is not a comic book, but I worked to ensure that the book design embodied that comic book feel,” said Christine Scott, co-publisher and creative director at Nosetouch Press. “Each book in the series will convey that aesthetic.”

“While being original work, the SHUTTERCLIQUE universe has aspects of the Marvel and DC universes, as well as things that fans of INVINCIBLE, THE BOYS, HEROES, DEADPOOL, MYSTERY MEN, and KICK-ASS will enjoy,” said Neal. “With a heroic amount of worldbuilding comic book fans have come to expect.”

Nosetouch Press is an independent book publisher tandemly based in Chicago and Pittsburgh, with a commitment to bringing classical book design and excellent fiction to readers everywhere.
